SUPHAN BURI

ACACIA

For lovers of all things classic. One of the very few in our portfolio that holds a “traditional” rectangular shape. The table top made of black locust, four legs from natural timber, irregularities filled with epoxy resin. Years of growing in the muddy and moist terrain created dramatic grains in the tree. The surface polished to the high gloss.

Size L 210cm W 92cm H 76cm

KANCHANABURI

ACACIA

Natural wood table from three acacia wood boards. Cuts on the short sides give the table its shape and longer sides feature the unique wood irregularities, thank to which you are looking at a unique piece that is impossible to replace. Surface finishing made with oil. Also suitable for exterior use.

Size L 260cm W 93cm H 76cm

RAYONG

TEAK

Teak wood features structures that are stunning in their irregularity. And when you happen to find the sweet spot, you can create an eye-pleasing table full of soft shapes that are so one-shot. Shape uniqueness. You can combine this table with chairs SONGKHIA.

Size D 125cm H 55cm

MAE SOT

LYCHEE

Beautiful complementary interior decoration.
It can stand on its own or one can hang in on the wall. The root system of lychee trees creates complicated network of roots, which, when cut properly, can create a picture-like piece.
Very impressive...

Size T 10cm W 250cm H 250cm

SIAM

The complicated root system of the lychee tree presents the ideal material even for carpenters to do some fine art. The cut through the roots made the table top with an amazing structure and the bottom part of the tree trunk has been made into the base/leg of the table. This table was created by nature itself. We have just noticed it was there.

Size D 210cm H 84cm

AYUTTHAYA

We used the root system of acacia tree for this luxurious decorative partition wall and we made it to hold a certain shape by a number of cuts. A beautiful natural structure was born that alternates lighter tree bark and darker inside wood grain – which, in fact, is the exact opposite of what we are used to with our local trees.

Size T 15cm W 380cm H 150cm

SONGKHIA

TEAK

Complicated shapes of the branches and roots of teak trees present ideal materials for shape experiments. And sometimes you look at it, and you see a chair. A chair, that is impossible to create again. There will never be another chair like this, ever. It is possible to combine the chairs with the RAYONG table.

Size H 105cm W 115cm

SI SA KET

A chair of a classic shape made of a single piece of timber. With arm rests and hand-carved reliefs with flower ornaments. Exotic timber, exotic look... as if coming from the Thai royal palace.

Size H 102cm D 53cm

SING BURI

ACACIA

The table top with dramatic grain has been shaped into the rectangular shape with the epoxy resin filling and polished to the high gloss. The tree got its dramatic grain from years of growing in the moist and muddy terrain. Metal legs present an interesting contrast to the natural materials.
